15. A Sign

Nick and Sarah enjoyed sleeping in their tent in the back garden. They especially liked to camp out under the stars in the summer time, when it was warm.

Nick studied the stars and planets. He knew all about the solar system and the constellations. Before going to sleep each night, he would make a wish that one day he would be lucky enough to go up in space, like the astronauts do.

The night, tonight, was crystal clear. Multitudes of stars flooded the sky millions of tiny pin pricks of sparkling light! The two of them lay there in their sleeping bags watching the stars with interest.

Suddenly, the hairs on the back of Nick's neck began to stand up on end, and he felt as if a cockroach had walked across his face. Sarah had turned white, and was staring open mouthed at the shapes unfolding in the night sky.

First, Aries, the Ram appeared like a giant, real life sheep, followed a few seconds later by Taurus, the Bull. Each vision lasted only a few seconds before it faded and the next one came forward. Leo, the Lion roared loudly at them before he departed. Cancer, the Crab and Scorpio, the Scorpion both looked very scary.

The children could not believe their eyes but they were not frightened. When the show finished, they both rubbed their eyes and looked at each other.

"Did we really see that?" asked Nick.
